

Angel Sessions The l-o-v-e

Review: Brecon Indie Reviews Mary Wood

Angel Sessions is a Soul and R&B Artist with a sublime combination of elite vocal technique and spiritual delivery.

Angel delivers it on sky silk with her new release, The l-o-v-e; an incredible, "Inspiration when you need it," song that encourages people to both love themselves and show love, in words that softly theme repeat and frequent the song header, the l-o-v-e.

Angel is a Patti Labelle kind of vocalist; the highest compliment I dish in female Soul Music! I am certain she is able to effortlessly deliver a "No constraints," holla, on a dime! I can feel it when she sings, as I did years ago!

She is landed back here for a visit and is even more of an R&B smacker than before, cemented in Gospel; does not get better! She is a fantastic songwriter, able to integrate what is in her soul with marketability and always keep it real. Her voice is a perfect drink of ethereal seduction, tone rich with register runs that are packed up smooth within the undulating pitches of a second soprano who rides around the middle and tips up on a breeze or strong wind, as the lyrics demand!

With a Gospel foundation cemented in Angel's voice, aligned with old school 60s-80s R&B sounds, she demonstrates her an ability to skillfully and cleverly plate, the l-o-v-e, for the contemporary palate. The added layers of sensuality within Angel's voice is an R&B, "Greats," marker and the listener stick effect is in!

The Gospel Choral Singers, throughout, are simply a high-end flashback to great churches with Motown ghostings. The Chorales are a true hearted enhancement to the message, mood, rhythm and tone of the song. Often, a lot of background singing is not appealing to me. These Gospel harmonies are rather, "meant to be there," they add so to the emotion and sound density.

The music is so well, "designed," for the song I almost did not hear it, yet was groovin to its soft cushion the entire time; that is tight! The vocals are given a deserved right of way. The "right on," rhythm and tempered, elite mix are an ever-present element upon which the vocals slide and we float.

The l-o-v-e is both a necessary and marketable song and Angel Sessions is a soulful sensation, not to be missed.

She is, most important to me, a truly good person, who remains generous to the Music Industry and humble in the face of stardom.

Radio is going to spin this hot and fans are going to listen once and need it!

Play the l-o-v-e often and breathe strength, inspiration, joy and groove!
