

Seven and Counting - "Stranded"

Review by: Clint Slate

Brecon Indie Reviewer Team

Have you ever felt bluesy? Trapped into a story you don't want? Ever needed the urge to blast the radio loud when driving in an old Cadillac on a desert American road?

Well, "Stranded," by Seven and Counting is a song that gives you exactly that, plus the urge to bob your head and stomp your feet on the beat.

Country rock blues is a genre that needs a steady rhythm, a bouncing bass line, some raunchy guitar licks, nonchalant vocals telling the truth of lies, harmonies to swallow the bitter reality more easily. All of this and more are present and admirably crafted by Seven And Counting, a band with more than seven members indeed, but mostly from... Croatia.

After all, country music is everywhere and life induces the same stories to tell all over the globe. Don't remain stranded on the shores of ignorance, get on your boots and enter the roadhouse!