

Nothing Matters But Love - The Reverent Cavaliers

Reviewed by Michael Lind of The Blindfold Experience

Brecon Indie Review Team

The Reverent Cavaliers are an indie rock band from Spring Hill, Tennessee.

Even though the guitar starts the song, it's the snare that I hear first and it's a great sounding snare, actually the whole kit sounds great! It lays a solid foundation that carries the song forward together with the guitar's cool and original riffing.

When the bass enters, the tone is loud in the mix and it sounds great, adding that much needed depth to the song.

The vocals are raw and to the point, delivering the lyrics with a confident air of rock extravaganza!

In the chorus a female harmony adds a new layer to the arrangement, adding depth to the song. And I imagine seeing her in the video, shaking an egg with some style!

They call their music "a fantabulous blend of indie rock sounds" and I agree, a great band with a great and original sound!